U.S. Firms Sign Agricultural Agreements in Algiers

As part of the Algiers International Trade Fair, U.S. agricultural companies — in specialty fields such as seed production, fertilizers, dairy and poultry — signed today six memoranda of understanding (MOU) with the Ministry of Agriculture and private Algerian companies. The MOUs are a testament to the strong relations between the two countries and its growing commercial ties.

U.S. agricultural firms' technological excellence and quality, as well as their commitment to training, have made them leaders in their field. Eight U.S. agricultural companies and organizations participated in this year's trade fair. They represent a wide range of agricultural segments, including farm equipment manufacturing, seed production, dairy processing, fertilizers, and animal genetics.

The U.S. government, U.S. companies, and organizations, like the U.S.-Algeria Business Council, are committed to developing agricultural cooperation with Algerian public and private companies and supporting the Algerian government in its efforts to diversify its economy.
