Tom McDermott is one of New Orleans' premiere piano players and composers, noted for the styles of jazz associated with that town, especially Dixieland jazz and ragtime. He has released 11 CDs as a band leader/soloist, and has received praise from the New York Times, Rolling Stone magazine and other publications. Tom McDermott grew up in St. Louis where he earned a Masters' Degree in Music. He is also a journalist, writing primarily about music and travel.

"Tom McDermott plays the fastest, wildest ragtime, Brazilian and stride piano you've ever heard.", Mark Childress, New York Times, September 4, 2005.

"Tom McDermott's unique piano style can be described as New Orleans hijinks with a classical strut.", Stuart Isacoff, Piano Today.
