Q: What Do I Do If My Green Card Has Expired or Is Expiring?

A: If your 10-year green card has expired or is expiring, airlines will likely allow you to board, provided that the expiration date on the card is the only reason that you would be denied boarding. This policy does not affect Conditional Permanent Residents in possession of a green card with a 2-year expiration date. Conditional Permanent Residents with an expired green card must continue to have evidence that the green card expiration date has been extended.

If you are denied boarding you will need to contact the U.S. embassy at BridgetownIV@state.gov in order to schedule an appointment to apply for a boarding foil.
