The Radcliffe Choral Society of Harvard University is a group of fifty singers dedicated to excellence in the performance of women's choral music. The choir regularly tours across the United States and internationally. Singing a vast repertoire including American folk songs, Renaissance works, and international music, the Choral Society is excited to share both its music and its history with Turkey, Bulgaria, Serbia, and Croatia. For more information about the choir or our summer tour, visit www.radcliffechoralsociety.org.
