Embassy Nairobi Sponsors Secondary School Math Camp

Over 150 secondary school students spent one week of their summer vacation at a US Embassy sponsored Math Camp on the campus of Maseno University in Western Kenya learning that mathematics is fun. Some of the students who attended the camp, which was the brainchild of a Kenyan Fulbright Student and was implemented by an American Fulbright Scholar in residence at the university, were alumni of the USG “BoldLeaders” Youth Leadership Program. The students played number games to sharpen their statistics skills and learned how to interpret computer data. The highlight of the camp for many students was a code breaking game in which each of four teams created their own numerical code, and the other teams tried to break the code.
