

I'm passionate about green initiatives.

This is my life trip.

I've worked as an Action Officer for science, technology and health issues abroad.

I've had the opportunity to work with USAID in monitoring and responding to a humanitarian crisis.

I worked on coordinating Palestinian participation in multilateral water talks and regional programs.

My career path isn't what you'd expect. I started out in investment banking and then became a diplomat with the U.S. Department of State. Working as a Foreign Service Officer in the Economic career track, I've been able to focus on something that means a great deal to me – environmental issues. Partnering with local officials in the Middle East and the Mediterranean, I've utilized my business and communication skills to promote renewable energy and negotiate water rights. And in my role, over the past six years, I haven't just had an impact on the world economy, I've also positively affected the global ecology. Now how many careers allow you to do that?
