

Stone Street - Interview with Ambassador Robert M. Beecroft

Ambassador Robert M. Beecroft has worked on virtually every major U.S. foreign policy question of the second half of the twentieth century. From the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) of the 1970s to Egypt-Israel relations, to the post-Warsaw Pact enlargement of NATO, to the Balkan wars of the 1990s, the Ambassador's career encompasses some of the most complex global issues in history. Read a transcript of his Foreign Affairs Oral History Project interview here.