THE IMPORTANCE OF PROTECTING WILDLIFE
December 3 and 4, 2012

Jeff Corwin

Wildlife trafficking continues to threaten protected and endangered species, on land and sea, pushing some to the brink of extinction. Wildlife trafficking threatens security and the rule of law, undermines conservation efforts, robs local communities of their economic base, and creates ecological imbalances. In these webchats you will have the opportunity to join Jeff Corwin in an important discussion on protecting wildlife. You will be able to share your own ideas across geographical boundaries with Jeff and others who may join the same programs.

Jeff Corwin is an American animal and nature conservationist and host of Animal Planet television programs, The Jeff Corwin Experience and Corwin's Quest, as well as his current ABC series, Ocean Mysteries. Since he was a teenager, Corwin has been an environmental activist and has worked on the conservation of endangered species and ecosystems around the world.

During the hour-long webchats listed below, Jeff Corwin will share personal stories and experiences from his travels and discuss the work that he has been doing.
