Awareness and Roles for Youth and All Citizens

This Webliography focuses on a new e-journal, Growing Up Green. The articles discuss what youth in the United States and around the world are doing to protect mother earth and its environment. While it is dedicated to youth – who will inherit the earth and its future – it covers issues important to all members of society. On the reverse side are additional titles and web links covering different themes on science, technology and the environment, including wildlife protection. All of the materials are available at your fingertips, accessible from any Internet-ready computer or hand-held device.
