U.S. GOVERNMENT EFFORTS

Secretary John Kerry's Remarks at the Annual Trafficking in Persons (TIP) Report Release

<http://www.state.gov/secretary/remarks/2013/06/210911.htm>

"When we help countries to prosecute traffickers, we are strengthening the rule of law. When we bring victims out of exploitation, we are helping to create more stable and productive communities. When we stop this crime from happening in the first place, we are preventing the abuse of those who are victimized as well as the ripple effect that caused damage throughout communities into our broader environment and which corrupt our global supply chains."

Ambassador Luis CdeBaca, Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking in Persons on 2013 Trafficking in Persons Report

<http://iipdigital.usembassy.gov/st/english/texttrans/2013/06/20130619276874.html#axzz2We4kFS00>

"...the things that we see with the TIP Report heroes and the bravery that we see of those heroes is something that we see around the world with about 27 million – up to 27 million, by some estimates, people being enslaved here in the modern day. We have some successes that we are going to be highlighting in the report this year."

Annual Meeting of the President's Interagency Task Force, to Monitor and Combat Trafficking in Persons

<http://iipdigital.usembassy.gov/st/english/texttrans/2013/05/20130517147618.html#ixzz2VCWwabkq>

Washington, D.C., May 17, 2013

Secretary of State John Kerry who chaired the Annual Meeting of the President's Interagency Task Force, to Monitor and Combat Trafficking in Persons, expressed that human trafficking is "a moral obscenity" that tears apart families and communities, and because human trafficking affects so many areas — such as law enforcement, immigration and health care — the only way to ensure an adequate outcome is to have a cross-government, holistic approach to the problem. Full text of the Remarks.

"Millions of people are trafficked each year for the purposes of forced labor or sexual exploitation. The Obama administration seeks to end this form of modern-day slavery."

White House Intensifies Fight Against Human Trafficking

<http://iipdigital.usembassy.gov/st/english/article/2013/04/20130409145501.html#axzz2VDqsl3A5>

"At the White House Forum to Combat Human Trafficking, the Obama administration released its latest plan to combat a practice that has been called modern-day slavery and to provide help for its victims. In his remarks at the forum, Attorney General Eric Holder said that the new strategic plan will better coordinate the efforts of U.S. federal agencies in dealing with a crime that enslaves an estimated 27 million victims worldwide."

Safe Horizon – Anti Trafficking: <http://www.safehorizon.org>

"Right now, there is a man on a boat, casting the net with his bleeding hands, knowing he deserves a better life, a life of dignity, but does not know whether anybody is paying attention. Right now, there is a woman, hunched over a sewing machine, glancing beyond the bars on the window, knowing if just given the chance, she might someday sell her own wares, but she does not think anybody is paying attention.

Right now, there is a young boy, in a brick factory, covered in dust, hauling his heavy load under a blazing sun, thinking if he could just go to school, he might know a different future, but he does not think anybody is paying attention. Right now, there is a girl, somewhere trapped in a brothel, crying herself to sleep again, and maybe daring to imagine that someday, just maybe, she might be treated not like a piece of property, but as a human being.

And so our message today, to them, is—to the millions around the world—we see you. We hear you. We insist on your dignity.

And we share your belief that if just given the chance, you will forge a life equal to your talents and worthy of your dreams.

Our fight against human trafficking is one of the great human rights causes of our time, and the United States will continue to lead it—in partnership with you."

– President Barack Obama,
Clinton Global Initiative,
September 25th, 2012

This weblibliography is designed to create awareness of the global scourge caused by trafficking in persons. It presents U.S. initiatives, including its partnership with other agencies and countries around the world, to end modern slavery. Our librarians review periodicals, reports and other information products available electronically to make them accessible to you at your fingertips.
