CELEBRATING INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY March 8, 2014

Since 1995, Presidents Clinton, Bush and Obama have issued a series of annual proclamations designating the month of March as "Women's History Month." This month long celebration expands on International Women's Day, a U.N.-designated observance celebrated every March 8.

This weblibliography provides a sampling of electronic resources honoring women and girls in the United States and around the globe. All the materials listed are accessible from any Internet-ready computer or hand-held device. There are books, periodicals, DVDs and electronic databases on this topic available at the Lincoln Corners across Malaysia for the public to access free of charge.

Publications

Power Plays — Celebrating Women's Achievements

In honor of Women's History Month, this issue of EJ|USA explores women's increasing participation not just in politics, but in sports, health, business and every part of our society. Women's ambitions are changing the American landscape.

Making Their Mark: Black Women Leaders

This issue of eJournal USA profiles African-American women of the 20th and 21st centuries who have made significant contributions to many spheres of American life. It also offers insights into how earlier generations of African-American women serve as touchstones for the present generation.

Enterprising Women, Thriving Societies

This issue of eJournal USA encourages women to pursue their entrepreneurial ambitions. It cites the experiences of businesswomen around the world and features successful women entrepreneurs who can serve as role models. It also identifies barriers and best practices for overcoming them.

Educating Women and Girls

Equal access to education by males and females has been defined as a universal human right by the United Nations. Realizing this right by expanding educational opportunities for women and girls requires the commitment of many sectors of a society. This issue of eJournal USA explores how international organizations, state governments, the private sector and individuals — in many different countries — are tackling this global challenge and improving people's lives.
