

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY -- US EMBASSY OPEN SOURCE SECTION

The US Embassy's Americas Open Source Section is seeking a Political and Media Analyst to review, summarize and analyze content from Latin American Spanish-language textual and broadcast sources for use by the US Government.

This position offers excellent overall compensation, flexible hours and an exciting work environment. The successful candidate will receive a starting salary commensurate with experience and unique qualifications (between $21,255 and $24,659 per annum), and associated benefits.

Applicants will be required to take a translation/English test and an analytic test. Office is located at the US Embassy in Clayton, and operates seven days a week.

Required	Desired	To Apply
Professional-level oral and written communication skills in both English and Spanish Critical thinking skills, ability to research and write insightful reports on regional topics of current interest in clear grammatical English Bachelor's degree or higher Knowledge of current events Flexibility, strong teamwork and interpersonal skills	Degree and/or experience in Latin American Studies, Political Science, Communications, Economics, Media Studies or related discipline Translation experience and/or Portuguese language skills Working experience with web publishing, digital video editing, and other multimedia tools Working experience with social networking sites, structured data, and/or mass analytics	Submit CV and cover letter in English, describing how you meet the qualifications by Friday, 30 August. Email: Recruit@rccb.osis.gov We only accept resumes via E-mail. Only qualified candidates with valid Panamanian work permits will be considered.