

SCIENCE SLAM 2015

EducationUSA Russia is looking for young scientists to participate in a SCIENCE SLAM as part of the 2015 Biblionoch event. The goal of the event is to promote dialogue between young scientists from U.S – Russian universities.

Science Slam is an international project to promote Science and create a favorable image of young scientists. Each event consists of a series of 10 minute projects where the speakers talk about their own field of research. The audience selects the best speaker.

We are looking for 9 talented young scientists, current graduate or undergraduate students, from U.S and Russian universities to speak for 10 minutes about his/her own research in a STEM field in a manner that is both interesting and understandable to a general audience.

The BEST speaker determined by the audience will get the special prize from EducationUSA Russia.

Each university represented by their student scientists will be able to present a brief promotional clip of their programs.

Specifics:

To participate, please submit a presentation summary and brief biography, including photograph to be published in the event handouts.

Speakers' application (submissions) deadline: April 12th 2015.

Event to be held on: April 24th 2015 at 19:30 MSK time (7 p.m + 3 UTC)

Venue: Moscow, Nikoloyamskaya street 1, EducationUSA/American Center.

Online presenters: Google hangouts (connections to be checked)

Contacts (organizer): akosilov@educationusarussia.org

Phone enquiries: +7 916676 3368

<https://educationusa-russia.timepad.ru/event/193069>

Follow us in Facebook: Edusarussia