

U.S. Embassy Sweden, Coca-Cola Enterprises Sverige, Google, LKAB and Sustainable Sweden Invite Students to Apply for REACT U.S. 2014

For the third consecutive year, Swedish university students are invited to apply for Research on Environmental Action and Clean Tech in U.S. Cities (REACT U.S.). For the first time U.S. Embassy Sweden and NGO Sustainable Sweden are offering the program in collaboration with Coca-Cola Enterprises, Google and LKAB.

REACT U.S. is part of the Swedish American Green Alliance (SAGA), a partnership between the United States and Sweden on clean energy and environmental sustainability. REACT U.S. is an opportunity for five Swedish university students to travel to the United States to conduct three weeks of research on urban sustainability.

Each successful candidate will be designated a specific U.S. city and explore its sustainable practices. The students will be blogging about their experiences during the stay.

U.S. Embassy Stockholm, in collaboration with Sustainable Sweden, Coca-Cola Enterprises Sverige, Google and LKAB, will fund the students' air fare, accommodation and also provide per diem.

Content of the program: Five grants for Swedish university students to conduct three weeks of research on the urban sustainability practices of five U.S. cities. The cities will be announced at a later stage.

Time: 3 weeks in August 2014.

Coordinators: U.S. Embassy Stockholm, Coca-Cola Enterprises Sverige, Google, LKAB, and Sustainable Sweden.

Eligibility: Due to immigration rules and regulations you need to be a Swedish citizen. You should be currently enrolled at a Swedish university and possess an interest in environmental sustainability.

Application Procedure: Applicants are required to complete the application form below and email it to [saga\[at\]state.gov](mailto:saga[at]state.gov) along with an updated CV in English. The Embassy will pass on a list of eligible candidates to Sustainable Sweden who will be making the final selection. Sustainable Sweden will be contacting the successful applicants.

Application Deadline: June 1, 2014
