

Aydin Toprakal's GIV Blog

When I learned that I would be able to go to Vermont I got really excited because the USA is really far away from my home and has a very different culture. But during the awesome two weeks I spent there I was surprised to see that people my age from all around the world had similar tastes, interests and personalities. The best side of going there was making new friends, learning about other cultures and experiencing teamwork. We exchanged ideas and opinions. Vermont has a beautiful environment. The food was really delicious and the activities were fun. We also went to NYC and it was one of my biggest dreams. In short all my dreams came true and I learned to be a member of a team.

Thanks to all staff members and to the Governor's Institute.