The Information Resource Center (IRC) of U.S. Embassy in Bangkok is pleased to offer a select list of current online reports, documents, and websites on The Impacts of Obama's Re-election on Asia from top think-tanks and non-governmental organizations (NGOs). Full texts are available at your fingertips by clicking the links provided or by copying the URL address into your Internet browser. Current and back issues of Web Alert are also available in our homepage at http://bangkok.usembassy.gov/resources/web-alert.html.

If any of your colleagues would like to receive this service, please forward their email addresses to us or go to http://bangkok.usembassy.gov/serviceform.html to subscribe online.

We welcome your questions, comments, and suggestions by email at irc@state.gov or by phone at 02-205-4174.

WEB ALERT

“The Impacts of Obama's Re-election on Asia”

November 2012

ARTICLES & REPORTS

“Obama Trip Shows Purposeful Asia Focus in Second Term”
Forty-eight hours after winning re-election to the second term, President Barack Obama announced he would visit three countries in mainland Southeast Asia—Cambodia, Myanmar, and Thailand—from November 17 to 20. Is this a typical Asia visit for a U.S. president? What were the implications for the visit? Full article currently available at: http://goo.gl/aUHsl

“What Obama's Second Term Means for Asia”
With Barack Obama’s re-election as the 44th President of the United States, what are major uncertainties in the U.S. policy toward Asia? The author, Professor of International Relations at the School of International Service of American University, discusses the challenges in the region awaiting the second Obama administration. Full article currently available at: http://goo.gl/VnfRb

“Asia’s Four Big Questions for Obama's Second Term”
What is the fate of the Obama's Asia pivot over the next four years? Will the Asia-Pacific military balance continue to shift in China’s favor? Will the United States get serious about trade? Can the president’s economic plan kick start U.S. growth? Mazza, a research fellow for the American Enterprise Institute discusses these four major questions after President Obama's reelection.
“Stanford Scholars Discuss Asia-Pacific Policy during Obama's Second Term”
Fresh off his re-election victory, Barack Obama – the "Pacific President" – will become the first president to visit Myanmar and Cambodia when he travels to the Southeast Asian countries this month. Scholars from the Walter H. Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center discuss reactions to the election in Asia, and possible directions for U.S.-Asia relations and foreign policy during the second Obama administration.
Full article currently available at: http://goo.gl/1mKtD

“Personal, Strategic Motivations for Obama in Asia”
Julie Pace. USA Today, November 17, 2012, 2 pages.
For President Obama, expanding U.S. influence in Asia is more than just countering China or opening up new markets to American businesses. What are the strategic motivations behind President Obama's larger focus on Asia?
Full article currently available at: http://goo.gl/8r8x8

WEB RESOURCES

Brookings Institution
http://www.brookings.edu
Brookings Institution is a private nonprofit organization devoted to independent research and innovative policy solutions. Its mission is to conduct high-quality, independent research and, based on that research, to provide innovative, practical recommendations.

Center for Strategic and International Studies
http://www.csis.org
The Center for Strategic and International Studies seeks to advance global security and prosperity in an era of economic and political transformation by providing strategic insights and practical policy solutions to decision-makers.

Council on Foreign Relations
http://www.cfr.org
Founded in 1921, the Council on Foreign Relations is an independent, national membership organization and a nonpartisan center for scholars dedicated to producing and disseminating ideas so that individual and corporate members, as well as policymakers, journalists, students, and interested citizens in the United States and other countries, can better understand the world and the foreign policy choices facing the United States and other governments.

Connect with US!

Follow the U.S. Embassy Bangkok on
Facebook | Twitter