SOUTHERN OREGON UNIVERSITY MERIT-AND-NEED BASED SCHOLARSHIPS

With smaller classes and individual attention from faculty, you are not a number at Southern Oregon University. Our four-year university specializes in a strong liberal arts and sciences curriculum balanced with career-focused preparation. Our liberal arts programs are intellectually challenging, creative and practical. You'll be learning more than theory—you'll be connecting what you learn in class with the community outside through internships, capstone projects, and undergraduate research.

Southern Oregon University offers three scholarships for new and continuing international students. To apply for these scholarships, download and complete their application forms: Ashland Rotary Scholarship, Cascade International Student Scholarship, and Siskiyou International Student Scholarship.

THE UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS AT AUSTIN ACADEMIC SCHOLARSHIPS

Founded in 1883, the university has grown from a single building, eight teachers, two departments and 221 students to a 350-acre main campus with 17 colleges and schools, about 24,000 faculty and staff, and more than 50,000 students. UT is a diverse learning community, with students from more than 100 countries and a student body that reflects the face of our society. African American, Hispanic, and Asian American students make up more than 35 percent of the enrollment, and 9 percent are international students.

Some academic departments at UT Austin award academic scholarships for which international students are eligible to compete. However, many such awards are available to students only after an initial year of work at UT Austin. To find out if your department offers such scholarships, contact your college or department.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY ASSISTANTSHIPS

With 5200 graduate and professional students in nearly 100 fields of study, the Graduate School administers all graduate and professional degrees at Cornell except the D.V.M., J.D., L.L.M., M.B.A., and M.D. degrees. The Graduate School provides critical strategic leadership and administrative and academic structures within which a diverse group of students and faculty in the graduate field system find the support, governance systems, and encouragement to thrive intellectually and professionally and achieve academic excellence.

Full-time Ph.D. and research master's students may be awarded assistantships, which fall into four general categories: Teaching Assistant (TA), Research Assistant (RA), Graduate Assistant (GA), and Graduate Research Assistant (GRA). These awards are administered by fields and departments. International students who come from countries where English is not the first language and who will TA in their first semester at Cornell are required to participate in the Center for Teaching Excellence's International Teaching Assistant (ITAP) summer program.

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY DEVELOPS SUMMER COURSES TO HELP INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS ADJUST

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY

A bridge program to acclimate international students to academic and cultural aspects of the United States during the summer is in the works at Syracuse University.

The program would enable international transfer students and first-year international graduate students to take two, three-credit courses prior to the start of the fall semester. Courses include one class on library research skills and one class on global leadership, neither of which would count toward a degree. Students would also be able to take summer courses offered through individual colleges at SU.

CREIGHTON UNIVERSITY CELEBRATES DIVERSITY ON CAMPUS

The International Student Association is a group at Creighton University devoted to celebrating and learning about the different cultures around the world, especially those of Creighton's student body.

The association has members from places as far away as China and from as close as here in Omaha, Nebraska. According to Arts & Sciences sophomore Agrini Boken, the International Student Association's VP for Administrative Affairs, all international students are automatically members and American students are also welcome to join. The club is open to all students no matter what their heritage, and members share their cultures with each other.
